National Employment Service

Is part-time help the answer to your staffing problem? Do you periodically or in a sudden emergency have need of casual or temporary workers?

If so, your local National Employment Office is geared to help you. Referral of competent, well-qualified workers is assured. You save time and money by placing your order with NES.

Should you have need of temporary or part-time help, call your local National Employment Office.

Your National Employment Office is on the job when you are. Even if your need for temporary or part-time help arises suddenly and unexpectedly, you will find that your order receives prompt and courteous attention. Experienced personnel selection officers work in your interests to ensure quick and satisfactory results.

The National Employment Service, through more than 200 offices across the country, fills over a million job vacancies each year. This means experience and proven success. No other agency has the resources and labour market knowledge to bring job and worker together so satisfactorily.

NES services are confidential and objective. NES services are free and as close as your 'phone.
